- Author's personal social media reaches over 300,000 people, and almost 100,000 through Zoe Church
- The author's podcast—Leadership Lean In—has over 500 five-star ratings, and the Zoe Church podcast averages over 19,000 views a week
- Author regularly speaks nationally at events like C3 and Passion conferences, and internationally at churches including Hillsong Australia and South Africa

We know leadership isn't exclusive to corner offices and multimillion-dollar budgets—some of the best leaders are the mentors and technicians who are more comfortable behind the scenes. But what if being an effective leader isn't just about having innovative ideas and high levels of productivity? What if becoming a great leader is more about prioritizing self-awareness and people skills than production and performance?

Help! I Work with People is not a book about leadership theory but rather a handbook on how to connect with people and influence them for good.

With his signature transparent and relatable storytelling, Chad Veach uses modern research and biblical principles to encourage you to lean in to your leadership potential regardless of your level of influence or experience. In short and easily digestible chapters, he addresses the three phases of becoming a quality leader:

- learning to lead the hardest person you will ever be in charge of—yourself
- recognizing the power of becoming a people person
- creating a culture and environment where the team's shared vision can grow

People are the most important part of life. Let's learn how to lead as if we like each other.

Something new. When it comes to the lives and hearts of God's people, God is always up to something new. Though we love to look for signs or subtle shifts in circumstance, though it's such a gift to sense God's presence and receive insight from his Word, he's working even when we can't see him, feel him, or sense him. He's always working, continually listening to our prayers and faithfully interceding for us—orchestrating circumstances that, when displayed in all their fullness, will reveal God's fatherly heart for his children, will unveil his meticulous attention to detail, and will leave us breathless.

All of heaven is for us. Imagine.

Dare to look up this holiday season and ask for something new. Ask the Lord himself to reveal a fresh revelation of his love, one that leaves you undone and renewed, all at the same time. Ask him for new levels of awe and wonder that you might dare to go forward into your future, unafraid, full of hope. Train your thoughts to excitedly think about eternity because of the astonishing goodness that awaits you on the other side. May this holiday season launch you into your next season with the full assurance that you are one of God's dear children, covered, cared for, and called. And his plans for you are only and always good.

"I just don't think I can do this. I don't think I will make it through."

Have you ever felt like that? I have, many times. And yet, somehow, I am still alive and moving forward, one step at a time.

As I look back on the decades of my life, one thing I know is that storms are a natural part of life. There are emotional storms, spiritual storms, physical storms, psychological storms, financial storms, marriage storms, child storms . . . you get the picture. These storms come upon us by surprise.

I just wish someone had prepared me for the storms. If I had been informed in advance that difficulties are a natural, normal part of life in the broken world, that relationships are a battleground for our selfishness, that part of our very calling as believers was to face this darkness of storms with the light of Christ, then I would have been saved from so much emotional and spiritual despair. To know the truth about something is to prepare to deal with the reality of that truth. I experienced so much anguish, doubt, fear, bitterness, and insecurity because I did not know life would be so hard so often.

Consequently, my desire was to write this book to come alongside others, to help illuminate some of the emotional upheaval that comes when we are taken by surprise, and to companion others with the comfort and wisdom it has taken me decades to learn.

You Can Weather Life's Storms with Grace and Hope

- Sally Clarkson is the bestselling author of numerous books on intentional motherhood, family, faith, and homeschooling
- Author is the host of the popular At Home with Sally podcast, with more than 14 million downloads
- Biblical hope for women feeling alone in the midst of a storm

In the midst of a storm, it's easy to feel lonely, exhausted, distracted, fearful, and helpless. When you're overwhelmed by feelings of hopelessness and despair, you may even feel like God has forgotten you. Like the disciples in the boat in the midst of a tempest, panic ensues when your eyes are fixed on the storm instead of on Jesus.

In Help, I'm Drowning, bestselling author and podcaster Sally Clarkson encourages you to find your anchors for life's storms. Sally will encourage you to

- combat loneliness with intentional engagement and community
- take care of your physical body to improve your spiritual, mental, and emotional health
- find healing and forgiveness for regrets, conflict, and broken expectations
- cultivate a level of contentment and thanksgiving for the life you have
- embrace God's strength as the determiner of your battles

Our ultimate goal is to live by faith in the reality of his way, his truth, and his presence. The disciples were indeed in a storm, but they were not alone in the boat; Jesus was there and stilled the storm when called upon. Trusting ourselves to the God who never leaves us is key to finding rest in the heart of God in the midst of life's storms.

Find Sweet Peace in the Midst of Any Trouble

- Author speaks regularly at large churches and conferences about the spiritual aspect of mental health
- His past books were endorsed by Lee Strobel, Sheila Walsh, Matthew Barnett, and Jack Graham
- Book includes trustworthy answers from Scripture and expert insights from medical professionals

It's easy to think that emotional pain and feelings of hopelessness are modern issues. But two thousand years ago, Jesus ministered to people who were also longing for peace and happiness. His answer? God's peace—his Shalom, a word so important that it's translated seventy different ways in the Bible. This often-overlooked aspect of the Christian life is the foundation for deep, meaningful happiness.

In this uplifting book, Jeremiah Johnston provides a biblical perspective on living a life of Shalom. Johnston reveals:

- the peace Jesus offers vs. the peace the world promises but can't deliver
- how to apply God's peace to our current situation and combat anxiety, fear, and hopelessness
- how to protect this perfect peace in our lives when troubles try to steal it

This book is also helpful for lay leaders, pastors, and everyone else who recognizes the church's incredible opportunity today to help individuals and families dealing with anxiety and depression.

Happy is an adventurous little crab whose world is suddenly turned upside down (literally!) when a mama and her son discover his large, unbroken shell in shallow water in the Santa Rosa Sound. Just as they decide to keep the shell as a souvenir, the boy unexpectedly feels something move inside. Discovering the crab still living inside his perfect home, the boy is faced with a decision: Keep him or let him go. Ultimately, he learns that sometimes true happiness comes from putting someone else’s needs and happiness ahead of your own. Many women are worn out juggling the responsibilities of work, home, and their spiritual lives. They think finding “balance” is the goal. But what if life balance wasn’t God’s ideal for us?

With passion and wisdom, businesswomen, wives, and mothers Michelle Myers and Somer Phoebus reveal that the way to true wholeness has nothing to do with so-called balance and everything to do with placing the full weight of our lives on the Gospel.

Michelle and Somer challenge the modern-day thinking about life balance and “boss babe” mentality, helping working women place their dreams, goals, and side hustles under the authority of Jesus.

This empowering guide will help women in the trenches to:

- receive practical application for what it means to live with God at the foundation of life, family, and work
- learn what God measures (and what he doesn’t!)
- stop trying to be both who God says they are AND who the world says they should be

A perfect resource for a woman at any stage of her career longing for deeper fulfillment in life and work.

EXCERPT

This book is part biography, and part memoir—part research, part love letter. I am a writer, a teacher, and a mother—a history buff insofar as it allows me to helm my ninth-grade classroom well. My goal in these pages is not to give you a comprehensive look at the ten lives listed here, but, rather, to 1) give you a taste of the dynamic lives of these women and to 2) show you which parts of their stories have inspired me in my own journey towards understanding what it means to be part of the story God is telling so that 3) you are inspired to delve deeper into each and every one of their lives to see God’s handiwork and proclaim his goodness.

These women were not perfect. As with any person across the face of our history, we can find missteps and errors, faults and disagreement. But overwhelmingly, each and every one of them represents a beautiful facet of Christian womanhood that has inspired me in my own walk, and that I cannot wait to bring out for you. Where they emulate their Savior, they emulate him well. Where they fell short, his grace was sufficient for them, as it is for us.

We serve a storytelling God. Come meet him through these stories.

Discover the Strength of the Black Women Who Came Before Us

- Author is a contributor for The Gospel Coalition, Desiring God, Christianity Today, and The Witness
- Author will be promoted at The Gospel Coalition Women's Conference
- Teaches what biblical womanhood looks like through the lives of ten extraordinary Black women

Through the lives of Elizabeth Freeman, Nannie Helen Burroughs, Amanda Berry Smith, Mamie Till, and others, author and speaker Jasmine Holmes shares the significant role that Black women have played in the formation of our faith—and are playing in our formation as modern-day women of faith.

As these historical figures take the stage with Holmes, you will be inspired by what the stories of these women can teach us about education, birth, privilege, and so much more. Carved in Ebony will take you past the predominately white, male contributions that seemingly dominate history books to discover how Black women have been some of the main figures in defining the landscape of American history and faith.

Come along on Jasmine's journey and be encouraged by the powerful and persuasive Black women of our past so that you can help inspire a better, more inclusive future.
