BETHANYHOUSE

ALL THINGS HIDDEN

"Award-winning Peterson and Woodhouse have coauthored a marvelous story of love and adventure in the Alaskan frontier. Their characters spring to life against a background of historical events."—Booklist

"A lot of story is packed in pages filled with loving, fully researched detail. The novel's power lies in its deceptive simplicity and clear narrative."—Publishers Weekly (starred review)

"Full of unexpected twists and beautiful scenery, All Things Hidden is an engaging story set against a beautiful backdrop. . . . The likable characters are not overly dramatized. . . . the reveal does not play out as expected. All this, along with the suspense of the protagonist's story make this novel hard to put down."—RT Book Reviews

"Tracie Peterson and Kimberley Woodhouse create a wonderful piece of historical fiction. . . . This novel is equally balanced between character and plot development, with plenty of action, suspense, and human emotion to satisfy most fiction lovers. . . . Amid the dishonesty, secrets, fear, evil, and hurt, love and truth are ultimately revealed and triumphant."—Christian Library Journal

Lillian Porter has always wanted to fulfill her mother’s dream of going west, so when she hears about a nanny position in Angels Camp, California, she defies her grandfather and takes a chance on a new future. But she quickly wonders if she made the right choice. There are rumors in town that her new employer, Woodward Colton, caused the death of his wife. This accusation doesn’t match the man Lillian comes to know—and Mrs. Goodman, Woody’s long-time housekeeper, is decisively on Woody’s side—but many in town stay far away from Lillian because of her association with the Colton family.

Lillian’s six-year-old charge, Jimmy, was there when his mother died, and he hasn’t spoken a word since. Gently, Lillian tries to coax him out of his shell, hoping he’ll one day feel safe enough to tell her the truth about what happened. But the Colton olive farm is no longer a safe place. Lillian encounters suspicious characters on their land and mysterious damage done to the farm. Will Mrs. Goodman and Jimmy be able to speak what they know in time to save Lillian from tragedy?

EXCERPT

"I'm no beauty. Not by New York standards, anyway," Maggie Montgomery said, smiling at her brother. "I've been reading some American magazines to prepare me for what the ladies wear over here." She plucked at the sleeve of her serviceable brown overcoat. "I'm afraid I'll be painfully out of style."

"Not to worry. You'll have Colleen and the other O'Learys to help with your wardrobe. I'm sure they won't mind lending you a dress or two." Gabe grinned, revealing dimples in each cheek.

Maggie's heart swelled with love for her handsome brother, who had long been her protector. Maybe Gabe would fall in love here in New York, as Maggie hoped to do. Her family had all agreed that she and Gabe would stay in America until the end of the summer. Long enough, they hoped, for Neill Fitzgerald to forget about Maggie and find a new girl to pursue.

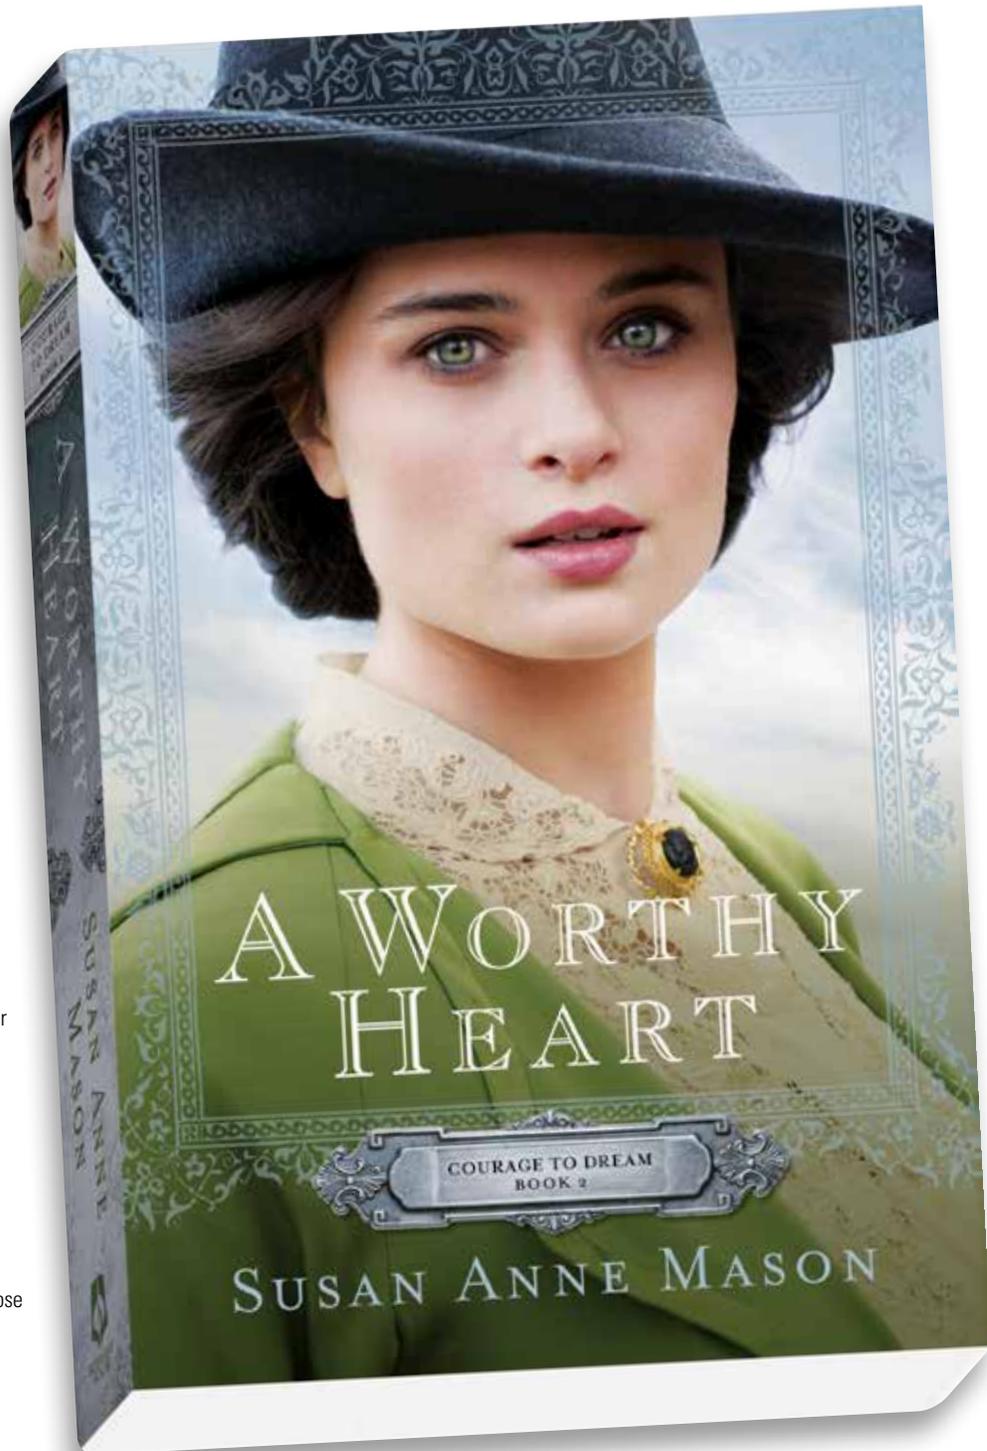

Neill's unwanted attention, as well as Maggie's yearning to experience life outside her small village, had given her the courage to leave, though saying good-bye to her mother had been one of the hardest things she'd ever done.

"Hey now, why the sour expression?" Gabe elbowed her. "You look like someone kicked your cat."

She gave a discreet sniff and lifted her chin. No time for regrets. She needed to prepare for her new life. "Just missing home a wee bit," she said with a shrug. "Tis a far cry from this, isn't it?" She gestured to the ever-nearing shoreline.

"That it is." Gabe gave her another squeeze and a knowing look. "Mum will be fine with Paddy and Claire. You have nothing to feel guilty about."

Nothing except the secret she held close to her heart.

Can an Irish Lass with a Dream for America Find True Love?

- Mason's immersive and rich books offer characters readers want to spend time with
- A powerful story of one man hoping anyone can find worth in him under the weight of his past
- Returns to the same Edwardian time period of Mason's acclaimed Irish Meadows

Maggie Montgomery's long-held wish to see America is finally coming true. She'll visit her beloved brother Rylan and his wife, Colleen, and at the same time, escape Neill Fitzgerald's unwanted attention. In addition, Maggie has a secret! She plans to remain in America to seek her fortune and to hopefully find love. While visiting Irish Meadows, she meets an intriguing man whom she thinks is a stable hand. Only when Rylan demands she stay away from Adam O'Leary does she realize he's Colleen's brother, recently released from prison. Nonetheless, Maggie can't seem to make her heart conform to her brother's request.

Adam O'Leary has never felt worthy of his place in the family. Spending time in jail only reinforces his belief. Now that he's free, Adam hopes to make amends and earn back his family's trust. Falling in love with Maggie Montgomery, however, was never in his plans.

Despite everyone's effort to keep them apart, the two develop a bond nothing can break—but has Adam truly changed, or will the sins of his past prove too much for Maggie to overcome?

- “Gould is a master storyteller.”
—RT Book Reviews

They’ve been best friends for years, but as high school ends, Zane Beck can’t help but look at his Amish neighbor, Lila Lehman, with different eyes. Her controlling father sees only one future for Lila, though, and arranges for her to be courted by an upstanding young Amish man. When Zane sees the two together, his plans for the future crumble, and he impulsively enlists in the Army, following in his father’s footsteps.

However, the passing of years and the distance between them isn’t enough to halt their now hidden feelings for each other. If being together used to be difficult, it’s now impossible, especially with the Amish opposed to war. Zane’s service takes a dramatic turn when he’s sent to Afghanistan. Being on the front line and the reality of taking a life has him questioning whether he can continue to serve or not. But all choices have consequences—both his and hers. With Lila preparing to marry another, will these one-time sweethearts ever find the life together that they both still long for?

EXCERPT

"Who is Elohim?"

Shira sat down on a flat rock near the watering hole. Few souls stirred this early, and the sun tarried low on the horizon.

"I will tell you what I can, but I may have to finish another day." She patted the rock, beckoning me to sit, and although still a bit unsettled by her mocking, I sank down next to her.

"Elohim, the Strong One, is how we call upon our God. The God of our forefathers—Avraham, Yitzhak, and Yaakov. We also address him as Adonai, or Lord."

"But what is his name?"

"We call him by many terms."

"How can you ensure answered prayers if you cannot name him?"

"He hears." She closed her eyes and drew a deep breath through her nose, as though drawing divinity from the very air around her.

How could one make a god comply without a name to call upon?

She opened her eyes and gestured to the water. "When the river changed, that was Moses—our Deliverer. The rumor my brother heard is that Moses met Pharaoh that very morning. When he struck the water with a staff, it turned blood red."

"Why would Pharaoh do such a thing to the Nile?"

"No, Moses struck the water to show Pharaoh who is the highest god."

"Pharaoh is the highest god, the descendent of Ra, creator of life." I spouted the creed without hesitation.

"Pharaoh is not the highest god, and Moses will prove it to him." She stared into my eyes with an unfathomable expression.

Words escaped me. This strange girl had blasphemed Pharaoh without a blink. She could be tied to a pole in the public square and scourged, or worse.

"I know this is confusing to you. It goes against everything you have been taught. But I tell you, my friend, it is truth." She laid her small hand on my arm. "To help you understand I must start from the beginning. Do you want to hear?"

I did. For some inexplicable reason, I thirsted to know more.

PRAISE FOR BEVERLY LEWIS

"Beverly Lewis is the biggest name in Amish fiction."
—Newsweek

"No one does Amish-based inspirations better than Lewis."
—Booklist

"Author Beverly Lewis has come up with a new magic formula for producing bestselling romance novels."
—Time magazine

"Much of the credit [for the growth of Amish fiction] goes to Beverly Lewis, a Colorado author who gave birth to the genre in 1997 with The Shunning. . . The book has sold more than 1 million copies."—Associated Press

A Must-Have Novel from the #1 Name in Amish Fiction

- A dedicated readership eagerly awaits each new book: 17 million sold and counting!
- Lewis's books are fixtures on multiple bestseller lists
- Author regularly engages with her readers via social media and supports releases with more than 50 personal appearances each year

The mistakes of the past haunt Lucy Flaud, who years ago stopped attending the activities for courting-age young people in her hometown of Bird-in-Hand. Now twenty-five and solidly past the age of Amish courtship, Lucy has given up any hope of marriage, instead focusing her efforts on volunteering in both the Plain and fancy communities of Lancaster County. Yet no matter how hard Lucy strives, she feels uncertain that she'll ever find redemption.

Dale Wyeth has a deep mistrust of modern-day "advances" and the dependency they create. The young Englisher's interest in living off the grid is fueled further when he meets Christian Flaud, Lucy's father. Dale appreciates the self-sufficient ways of the Old Order Amish, and Christian invites him to learn more about them by staying at the family farm.

As Christian and Dale grow closer, developing a father-son rapport, Lucy begins to question what Dale's being there might mean for her. Could God be testing her? Or is it possible that even the most unworthy heart—and two people from very different walks of life—can somehow find a new beginning?

Dramatic New Series from Fan Favorite Michael Phillips

- Author has more than 7 million copies of his books in print
- Phillips has enjoyed a devoted fan base for decades
- This novel launches a 3-book series set in Scotland's Shetland Islands

The death of the clan patriarch has thrown the tiny Shetland Islands community of Whale's Reef into turmoil. Everyone assumed MacGregor Tulloch's heir to be his grand-nephew David, a local favorite, but when it is discovered that MacGregor left no will, David's grasping cousin Hardy submits his own claim to the inheritance, an estate that controls most of the island's land. And while Hardy doesn't enjoy much popular support, he has the backing of a shadowy group of North Sea oil investors. The courts have frozen the estate's assets while the competing claims are investigated, leaving many of the residents in financial limbo. The future of the island—and its traditional way of life—hangs in the balance.

Loni Ford is enjoying her rising career in a large investment firm in Washington, DC. Yet in spite of her outward success, she is privately plagued by questions of identity. Orphaned as a young child, she was raised by her paternal grandparents, and while she loves them dearly, she feels completely detached from her roots. That is until a mysterious letter arrives from a Scottish solicitor. . . .

Past and present collide in master storyteller Phillips's dramatic new saga of loss and discovery, of grasping and grace, and of the dreams of men and women everywhere.

EXCERPT

Christy shrugged out of her jacket, draped it over the back of her chair, and perched on the edge of the seat. Wrapping her fingers around the computer case in her lap, she held on tight.

What if she'd made a mistake by going to the authorities?

The knot that had been lodged in the pit of her stomach since she'd made the call tightened. If this decision turned out to be wrong, the consequences would be dire. That much had been clear.

Yet she wasn't equipped to deal with a kidnapper. She needed the kind of resources law enforcement could provide.

Prying one hand off the case, she tucked her hair behind her ear. She could have hung up while the operator transferred her to Agent McGregor. In fact, she almost had. She could also have severed the connection at any point during her conversation. He didn't know her name, and using a pay phone had allowed her to keep her options open.

But the man had sounded confident and professional, with a subtle take-charge, I'm-in-control manner that reeked of competence.

All of which had convinced her to take the leap.

Now it was too late for second thoughts. He'd be here any minute. All she could do was hope she hadn't misjudged him.

And pray she wasn't making a fatal mistake.

After losing her parents in a car accident and her sister to a house fire, Christy Reed has been mired in grief. Life is finally starting to feel normal again when an envelope arrives in the mail—addressed in her sister’s handwriting. And the note inside claims she is still alive.

FBI Special Agent Lance McGregor, a former Delta Force operator, is assigned to reopen the case, but he’s coming up with more questions than answers. If Ginny Reed is still alive—who is the woman buried in her grave? Where is Ginny? And is Christy a pawn in a twisted cat-and-mouse game—or the target of a sinister plot? As he digs deeper, one thing becomes clear: whoever is behind the bizarre ruse has a deadly agenda.

Bestselling author and two-time Christy Award finalist Irene Hannon warms readers’ hearts as they root for a romance between Lance and Christy, but she pulls out all the stops as this high-stakes thriller chills to the bone in a race to the finish.

EXCERPT

She had finished picking all the apples she could reach from one tree when she heard someone behind her.

"Liesbet, Mamm wants you to . . ." Hannah had turned as she spoke, but Liesbet wasn't behind her. It was the young man from the wagon.

"I wondered if you needed some help. I can reach the taller branches."

His accent was strange, but he spoke Deutsch, the Pennsylvania Dutch, just like all the Amish. His cheeks turned pink when she didn't answer right away, and he pointed to the apples clinging to the branches above her head.

"Ach, ja." Hannah felt her face turn as pink as his. She had never seen eyes quite the color of his. They were blue, but when he tilted his head down to look at her, they turned gray. He smiled again—a slow, gentle smile that made his eyes crinkle. Light brown hair curled around his ears.

He stepped around her and climbed up into the fork of the tree, reaching from that higher perch to pick the apples and toss them down to her. He worked without a word but smiled at her as he jumped down from one tree and climbed the next, every motion effortless. He continued until Hannah's apron was full.

"I have enough now," Hannah said as he climbed down from the last tree. "Denki . . ."

"Josef." He leaned against the tree, gazing at her. "Josef Bender."

- Compelling story of the choices we face when love and faith conflict
- Author has begun building a fan base through Love Inspired

Hannah Yoder loves her quiet life on the banks of the Conestoga Creek. In 1842, this corner of Lancaster County is settled and peaceful—yet problems lurk beneath the placid façade. Hannah's father worries about the spread of liberal ideas from their Mennonite and Brethren neighbors. And Hannah blames herself for a tragedy that struck their home nine years ago. She strives to be the one person who can bind the threads of her family together in spite of her mother's ongoing depression and her sister's rejection of their family. But her world is threatening to unravel.

When two young men seek her hand in marriage—one offering the home she craves and the other promising the adventure of following God's call west—Hannah must make a choice. Faithfully perform her duties to her family? Or defy her father and abandon her community?

With a tender hand, Jan Drexler teases out the threads of a romance that will captivate readers in this brand-new Amish historical series.

A flash of light shot through the driver's window then was gone. Maddy sat up straighter and looked in the direction the light had come from. When nothing else happened, she didn't relax. Instead her nerves began that little hum they did whenever she needed to be on alert. Aware. The light flashed again, further away and not hitting the car, but still there.

Ignore it? She continued her rhythmic tap on the steering wheel, debating. Then grabbed her phone and sent a text requesting some back up. She didn't know if she'd need it or not, but it never hurt to be prepared. Maddy had a good view of the front door of the radio station from her strategic position. She'd backed up and parked next to the building just across the lot from the building Wade had entered almost three hours earlier.

When the light swept across the front of the station doors, Maddy's pulse picked up speed and her nerves hummed faster.

Her fingers curled around the handle of the driver's door.

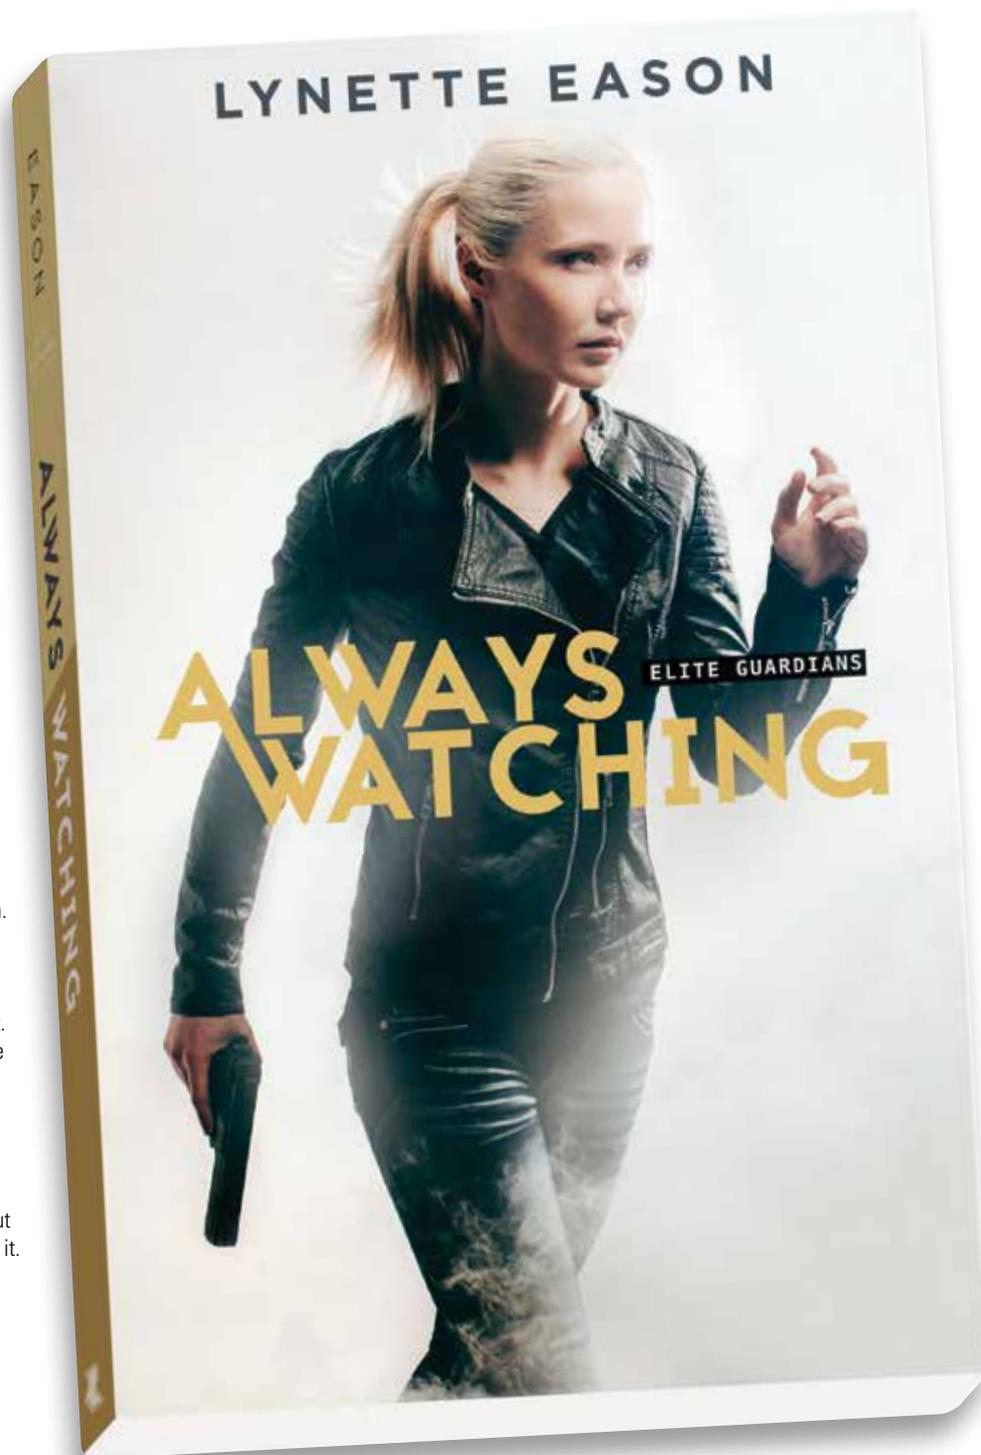

The glass to the passenger window exploded. Maddy ducked, flinched away from the shards hitting her, reached for her weapon. Felt a prick in her upper arm. Looked down to see a small dart sticking out. She grabbed for it and pulled it out. What? Her head began a slow spin and nausea climbed up the back of her throat. Weakness consumed her and she felt the darkness start to grab at her consciousness. She fought it, struggled to get her fingers wrapped around the door handle, her only thought to get out, get help. But her eyes wouldn't stay open. Her phone. She needed her phone to call for help. But her hand was too heavy. She couldn't lift it.

She forced her eyes open and saw a masked figure slide into the passenger seat, the knife glinting in her attacker's right hand.

"Why?" she whispered.

Felt the blade against her throat.

Then nothing.

Israel has been under the near constant terror of Canaan's armies for twenty years, and now God has called Deborah to deliver her people from this oppression. Will her family understand? Will her people even believe God's calling on her life? And can the menace of Canaan be stopped?

EXCERPT

"Jack, be serious for a minute. What do you know about her? How do you know she's not running a scheme or just trying to get at your money?"

The older man's laugh bellowed to the far corners of the house. "What money? I've sunk nearly every penny I have into this place."

"That's what I'm talking about. What if she's trying to make you feel sorry for her?"

"I already do."

Her stomach knotted at a brand new sensation. No one had ever pitied her before. Envied and imitated? Certainly. But no one felt sorry for the heir to a multi-million dollar real estate conglomerate.

Except, she wasn't the heir any more. She'd given up her rights to all that her name claimed by getting on one bus.

And that decision had stemmed from eavesdropping on another conversation.

Seth sighed, probably putting his hands on his hips. "Try to hear what I'm saying, Jack." His words rang louder and clearer. Had he turned to face the door? "She's trouble."

"How do you know?"

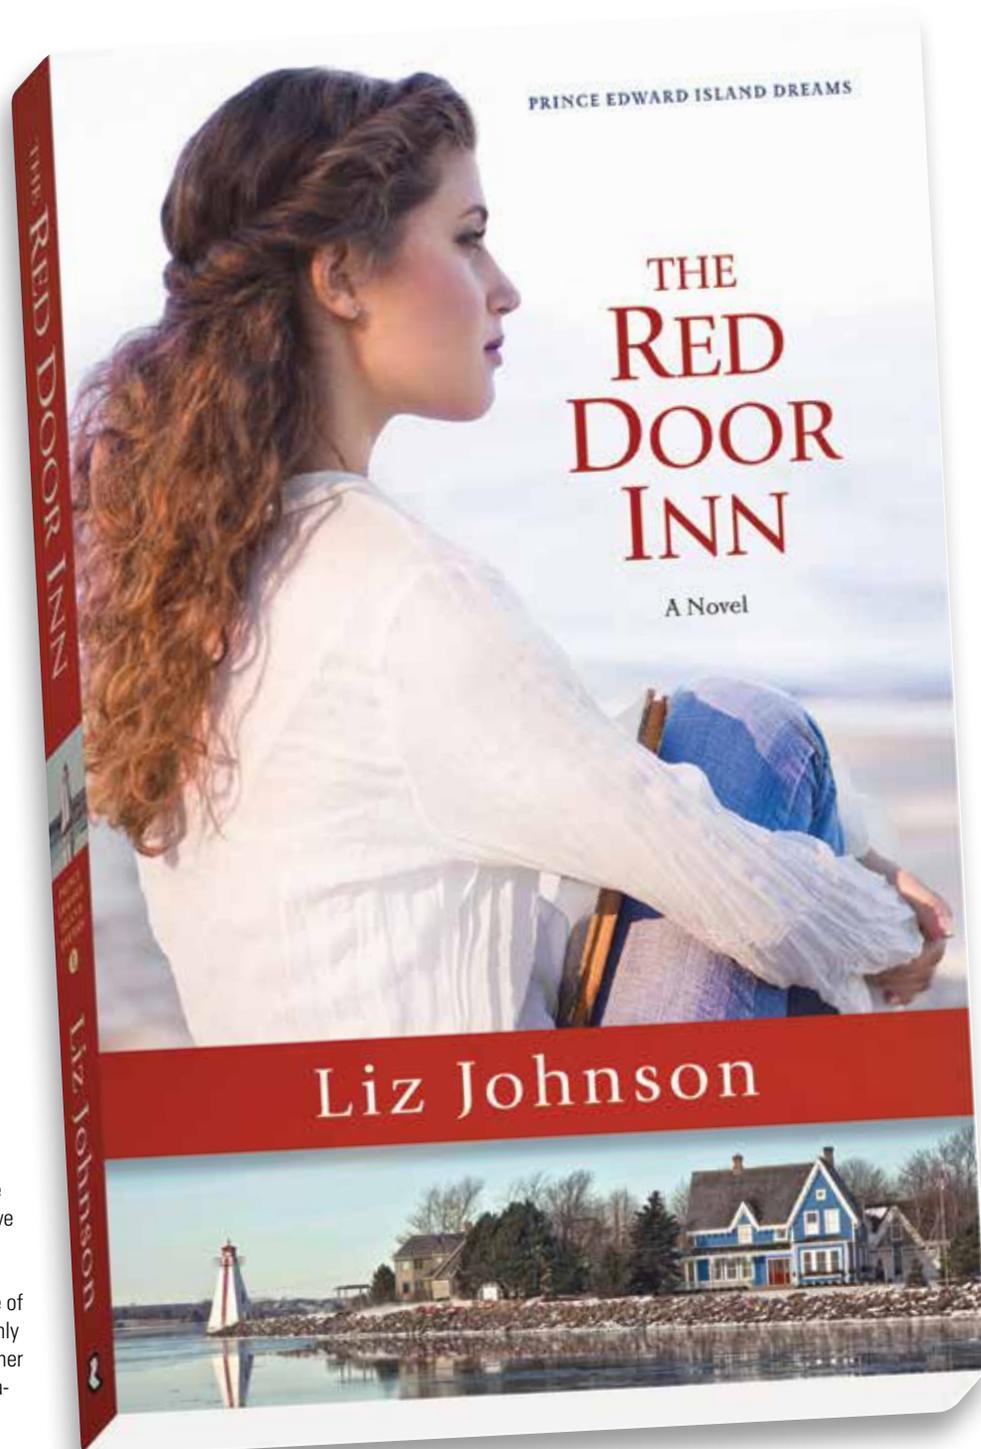

"I just do. Who shows up out of thin air like that just when you're about to be a success?"

"Rose wanted this inn more anything, and I promised her I'd open it. Success isn't a guarantee." Jack's voice cracked. He sure loved Rose.

"And would Rose want you to lose it all to a pretty hustler with glistening blue eyes and a pert little nose? She's already been gone long enough to walk to Rusticoville and back and again. Three times. Maybe she's not coming back. Have you checked to see if any valuables are missing?"

Silence hung heavily on the other side of the door, and she held her breath, suddenly afraid of being discovered. If they found her listening in on their very private conversation, they'd throw her out.

Nothing good ever came from eavesdropping.

EXCERPT

He awoke just after 4:00 a.m., the world around him oddly blanketed in silence.

Down below, the sentry cabin was almost imperceptible in the shadows of night. The Mute forced himself not to move, and instead to listen, to understand. He wished now that he'd brought along his M39 marksman rifle when he climbed up this tree, but it remained inside the sentry post below, leaning uselessly against a wall. He made a mental check of his other weapons: a Kahr K9098N handgun with night sights, strapped to his left thigh; a Smith and Wesson knife blade, hanging on a thick metal chain wrapped around his neck and dipping inside his shirt; a .22 short mini-revolver tucked safely inside his right boot.

He reached inside a cargo pocket on his pants and extracted a pair of night vision goggles, turning the forest an illuminated green in one swift motion.

The intruders appeared almost as silently as the night had become, giving only a slight rustling of dead leaves and crunching of dirt as the soundtrack for their arrival. There were four of them, each taking a position in sight of one corner of the sentry outpost. They all wore black that bulged with varied weaponry, heads covered with night-vision goggles that obscured their faces. Judging from body shapes, there were three men and one woman, all moving stealthily, all carefully aware to stay out of sight of the four surveillance cameras mounted at intervals around the roof of the camouflaged shed.

The Mute calculated his odds, and dismissed his chances almost immediately. He could take out one for sure, probably two, but they were spaced too far apart. They'd have him in sight and under fire before a third shot could escape his gun. . . .

He breathed a shallow exhale and let his training kick in. "When you don't know what to do," Truck had taught repeatedly, "wait. Too many men act too soon, and pay the consequences for it. Wait, and you'll likely see the course of action make itself plain before you."

So he waited.

Fast-Paced, Keep-You-Guessing Mystery with a Dash of Romance

- A plucky FBI art crime agent forges her way through a museum of lies to expose the ruthless mastermind behind the recent theft of a priceless painting
- Special Agent Serena Jones is a determined detective and a budding matchmaker who's endearingly oblivious to her own effect on men
- Author is winner of multiple awards, including a Daphne duMaurier Award

Serena Jones has a passion for recovering lost and stolen art—one that's surpassed only by her zeal to uncover the truth about the art thief who murdered her grandfather. She's joined the FBI Art Crime Team with the secret hope that one of her cases will lead to his killer. Now, despite her mother's pleas to do something safer—like get married—Serena's learning how to go undercover to catch thieves and black market traders.

When a local museum discovers an irreplaceable Monet missing, Jones leaps into action. The clues point in different directions, and her boss orders her to cease investigating her most promising suspect. But determined to solve the case and perhaps discover another clue in her grandfather's murder, she pushes ahead, regardless of the danger.

With spunk, humor, and plenty of heart-stopping moments, Sandra Orchard gives readers an exciting string of cases to crack and a character they'll love to watch solve them.

ROMANTIC SUSPENSE OFFERS HIGH-STAKES ACTION FOR EAGER READERS

by Ann Byle

Readers looking for heart-pounding danger, honorable heroes, tough heroines, and romantic delights need look no further than the popular and ever-growing romantic suspense genre.

Romantic suspense is gaining popularity with readers as they flock to books that blend pulse-pounding kisses and mortal danger.

Dani Pettrey

"You get the happily ever after, but also the fight of good vs. evil," says bestselling romantic suspense author Dani Pettrey. "There is a compelling and intense mystery with lots of chills, but readers know they'll get a happy ending when it comes to the romance."

Pettrey is author of the five-book Alaskan Courage series that includes Submerged, Shattered, Stranded, Silenced, and Sabotaged. Each book features one of the five McKenna siblings finding romance amid the dangers and villains of rugged Alaska.

"For me each book needs to be equally romance and suspense; both could stand on their own, but they feed off each other," says Pettrey, who lives in Maryland. "What characters are going through suspense-wise helps the romance, and the romance can be threatened by the suspense. Both are better for the other."

Revell and Bethany House are in the thick of romantic suspense thanks to authors such as Dee Henderson, Irene Hannon, Dani Pettrey, and Lynette Eason. In fact, romantic suspense was 13.5 percent of total fiction sales for Baker Publishing Group in 2014. That's over 400,000 romantic suspense novels sold in 2014 alone. Only Amish and historical genres sold in higher numbers.

David Lewis, executive vice president for sales and marketing at Baker Publishing Group, says romantic suspense has reenergized fiction sales. "It's been a lot of fun to see the response in the marketplace to romantic suspense. It's nice to see a new category break out stronger than it ever was. We've nurtured that category and the audience has really responded."

"Romantic suspense gives readers vicarious thrills," says Irene Hannon, "putting them in dramatic situations they're never likely to encounter in real life—all with the assurance of a happy ending. It's an exhilarating ride from start to finish, but with no risk."

Both Pettrey and Hannon credit romantic suspense authority and Bethany House author Dee Henderson with paving the way for others who write in the genre. Her most recent, Taken, released to wide acclaim in April 2015. There are close to 4 million of Henderson's novels in print.

Hannon, who also has written contemporary romance, loves to write romantic suspense from her home in Missouri. "I get to ratchet up the pressure and put my heroes and heroines in high-stakes, life-threatening situations that force them to confront their fears and feelings faster and in a more dramatic context. I also enjoy creating complex villains who defy stereotypes, and then taking readers inside their heads. Let me tell you, that can be a very scary place!"

Hannon is the bestselling author of the three-volume Private Justice series (Deceived, Trapped, Vanished) and the new Men of Valor series featuring former Special Forces operatives back in civilian life. The first book in the series, Buried Secrets, released in April 2015.

Pettrey is working on her new four-book Chesapeake Valor series. The first book, Cold Shot, comes out in February 2016, with the second due out in October 2016. Bethany House and Revell are busy nurturing other romantic suspense writers as well, including Lisa Harris, Nancy Mehl, and Patricia Bradley.

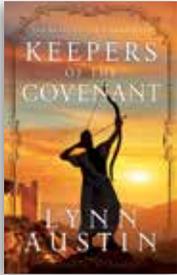

Christy Award-winner Harris's first book in her new series, Vendetta, will be in stores in October 2015. Bradley, winner of a Daphne duMaurier Award, and Mehl, winner of the ACFW Mystery Book of the Year Award, are finishing up popular series and starting right away on new romantic suspense.

"The number of readers I hear from and the number of authors writing in the genre continues to grow, showing that romantic suspense will continue to grow," says Pettrey. "A lot of readers say they were readers of Dee, then Irene, and then they found me. They read multiple authors but stay in the romantic suspense genre. That's exciting to hear."

Irene Hannon

Adds Hannon, "Romantic suspense continues to be one of the most popular fiction categories, and I don't see that changing any time soon. At least I hope it doesn't—because I have a lot more stories to tell!" ■
